JURISDICTIONAL STATEMENT

OPINIONS BELOW

DIANE DANIEL, the Appellant appeals from the final Judgment opinion and orders of the Michigan Court of Appeals dated February 2, 1982 copy attached to Appendix at P2a-5a; affirming Order of trial Court dated November 18, 1980 copy attached to Appendix P.1a. A timely Application for Leave to Appeal to the Supreme Court of Michigan was DENIED by its Order dated February 22, 1983; APPENDIX P. (6a)

JURISDICTION

The Denial of Application for Leave to Appeal on February 22, 1983 forever denies appellant minor child the right to sue for paternal child support making the opinion and Order of the Michigan Court of Appeals dated February 2, 1982 reviewable as a final judgment.

A Notice of Appeal to this Court was duly filed in the Michigan Court of Appeals, and in the Supreme Court of Michigan. See p. 7a-8a infra. Appendix.

This appeal is being docketed in this Court within 90 days from the Final Order denying of Application for Leave to Appeal in the Supreme Court of Michigan dated February 22, 1983. THE JURISDICTION OF THIS COURT IS INVOKED UNDER 28 U.S.C. Sect. 1257(2).

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

I. DOES SEC. 4 OF THE MICHIGAN PATERNITY ACT, MCL Sec. 772.714(b) or MSA 25.494(b) VIOLATE THE 14TH AMENDMENT OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION BY PLACING A SIX (6) YEAR TIME LIMITATION ON PATERNAL CHILD SUPPORT ACTIONS OF ILLEGIMATE CHILDREN, WHEN NO RESTRICTION WHATSOEVER IS PLACED ON LEGITIMATE CHILDRENS' PATERNAL SUPPORT ACTIONS?

A. Especially when there is no "substantial" or "compelling" state interest for which the law was enacted being served thereby:

1. Without "compelling state interest" that outweighs the illegitimate childs right to paternal financial support, the child's fundamental right to "life" and enjoyment thereof within the means and ability of his true father;

2. Without "compelling state interest" that outweighs the very purpose of enactment to protect the illegitimate minor's right to such financial support where none existed at Common Law.

3. Without "compelling state interest" that outweights the public interest in enactment to prevent illegitimate children from becoming "public charges" to be supported from taxation on public welfare rolls of the State and National governments.

(a) Especially when illegitmate births nationally for the past year alone amounted to 600,000: 27,000 in Michigan: a problem that involves some $30,000,000 annually and about $1,500,000,000 in Michigan, and births and costs mount annually.

II. DOES Sec 4 of the MICHIGAN PATERNITY ACT MCL Sec. 712.714(b) or MSA 25.494(b) VIOLATE THE 14th AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION WHEN THE TIME LIMITATION PERIOD THEREIN FOR PATERNAL SUPPORT OF ILLEGIMATES IS THE ONLY MINOR'S CAUSE OF ACTION WHEREIN THE LIMITATION PERIOD NOT TOLLED, OR SUSPENDED AND EXTENDED, IS FOR THE ENTIRE MINORITY UNDER MICHIGAN LAW MCL Sec. 600.5851 or MSA 27A.5851 TOLLING ANY AND ALL MINORS CAUSES OF ACTION?

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS AND STATUTES

14th Amendment, United States Constitution.

.....No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges and immunitees of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprieve any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law; NOR DENY TO ANY PERSON WITHIN ITS JURISDICTION THE EQUAL PROTECTION OF THE LAWS.....

STATUTES

Michigan Paternity Act, Act #205, Public Acts 1956 as amended; Sec. 722.714(b) MCL, Sec. 25.494(b) MSA

"...(b) Proceedings in pursuance of this act may be instituted during the pregnacy of the mother or after birth of the child, BUT SHALL NOT BE BROUGHT AFTER THE LAPSE OF MORE THAN SIX (6) YEARS FROM THE BIRTH OF THE CHILD, unless paternity has been acknowledged by the father in writing in accordance with statutory provision. If any payment is made for support of the child in the six year period, the proceedings may be commenced anytime within six years from the last of any such payment. If the Defendant is outside the state during the six year period, the time he is absent shall not be included in the six year period."

PRESUMPTION OF LEGITIMACY OF CHILDREN

"Sec 25.107 MSA (DIVORCE) (MCL 552.29)

"Sec. 29 The legitmacy of all children begotten before the commencement of any action under this act shall be presumed until the contrary is shown."

MCL Sec. 600.5851, MSA 27A.5851 in pertinent part reads:

Sec 27A,5851 (1) If a person first entitled to.....bring any action is under 18 years of age at the time his claim accrues, he or those claiming under him shall have one (1) year after the disability is removed...to...bring the action although the period of limitation has run.

RAISING THE FEDERAL QUESTION

At the earliest possible stage, appellant raised the Constitutional violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment, in Defendant-Appellee's Motion for Accelerated Judgment under Sec. 4(b) of the Paternity Act Statute of Limitations, Trial Court dismissed appellant's petition and held there was no constitutional infirmity. See Trial Court Order P.1a appendix.

The 14th Amendment Violation under the Equal protection clause was reiterated and argued before Court of Appeals, as well as question II raised herein. The Court of Appeals held no constitutional violation of the Equal Protection clause under both questions raised herein and their opinion is attached to the appendix P. 2a - 5a.

The Denial by the Supreme Court of Michigan of Appellant's Application for Leave to Appeal noting "the Court is not presuaded that the question presented should be reviewed by this Court," affirming the Court of Appeals P.6a appendix.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Paternity action was filed on March 5, 1980 on behalf of the minor child born December 18, 1973 for paternal child support in the Circuit Court for the County of Saginaw, State of Michigan by and in name of mother as Paternity Act requires upon her going on AFDC for herself and child required by Social Security Act and State regulations. Defendant filed a Motion for Accelerated Judgment involking Sec. 4(b) of the Paternity Act MCL 722.714(b)(MSA 25.494(b)). Trial Court held that the Limitations period in said Sec. 4(b) was not constitutionally infirm. See P 1a appendix for Court's Order dated November 18, 1980.

Appellant appealed to the Michigan Court of Appeals raising the Constitution questions presented herein and Court of Appeals of Michigan by its Opinion and Judgment dated February2, 1982. See Appendix P 2a-5a, held no constitutional violations and affirmed the lower court.

Application for Leave to Appeal to the Supreme Court of Michigan was denied February 22, 1983 copy of which is attached hereto P 6a appendix, from which final Order this appeal was taken invoking 28 U.S.C. Sec. 1257(2).

THE QUESTION IS SUBSTANTIAL

I

The importance of determining whether any period of limitation on the opportunity of children born out of wedlock, termed "illegitmate", is legally justifiable under our system of law which provides Equal Protection of Law to all children in their fundamental right to paternal child support, which encompasses the "right to life" and the "enjoyment thereof", should be readily apparent to this Honorable Court especially in these times when 600,000 illegitimate children were born in the United States last year, 27,000 of which occurred in Michigan. The impact of the numbers of children involved and our public policy to take care of all children whether their parents were married or not, is to be considered under up-to-date and modern socio-economic conditions rether than old common law concepts that created the "legal monster" of illegitimate children. At common law paternal support could not be legally enforced; nor were the Court doors open to entertain such claims. As late as 1973 Court doors were locked against illegitimate children's claims for paternal support in this country, when this Court opened the last door in the GOMEZ v. PEREZ CASE, 400 U.S. 535, 35 L.Ed (2d) 56, 93 S.Ct. 872. (1973)

The Equal Protection Clause requires all persons in a class similarly situated to receive equal opportunity and protection of law. The class we are dealing with is children. The fundamental right involved is paternal child support. There is no difference between children born in and out of wedlock to make them distinguishable because their parents were married or unmarried. The needs of children to life, financial support, education and maintenance during their entire minorities is the same. Neither group of children chose to be born. To limit their rights because of common-law shibboleths is not only unjust, but also illogical in this day and age. Children born out of wedlock have been given a legal remedy to obtain paternal child support in Paternity Acts. In Michigan such an Act first appeared in our Revised Statutes of 1846. The time limit from date of birth for the entire minority during which Court doors are open to entertain claims for paternal support must be the same for illegitimate children as for the legitmate. To say that there is a reasonable time limit on the rights of the illegitimate, while no limit exists for the legitimate clearly denies the illegitmate equal protection of the law. Reasonable limitations if there are to be any on one group must be EQUAL IN TIME DURATION to the others in the class.

To say that in Paternity Cases of the illegitimate, that the father has to be determined gives us a difference class, is to begthe question. In reality in all cases where PATERNAL CHILD SUPPORT IS SOUGHT the Court must make a determination of who is father and then fix an amount of support in accord with his earnings, ability and means. In the child born in wedlock cases there is and has been a so called "presumption of legitimacy", where upon proof of marriage of the parents and date of birth of the child the presumption, though rebuttable; makes the vast majority legal father. Pleadings alone, uncontroverted are enough in most cases. THIS RULE OF EVIDENCE FROM THE COMMON LAW being MCL 552.29, MSA 25.107 does not create a "special class" of children to be treated more favorable than children whose parents were not married: No attempt is sought to change the rules of evidence merely to keep the Court doors open equally in duration for those born in and out of wedlock. The RULES OF EVIDENCE applied to illegitimate children require proof of paternity by a preponderance of the evidence. Rules of evidence or difficulties of proof in Court does not justify or create sub-classes for whom the doors of Court are closed for 2/3 of the minority. Such reasoning is neither just or logical. To punish the child by closing the door after the first 6 years because his parents were not married, plus his case being much harder to prove is clearly unjust and illogical and contrary to fundamental fairness and our system of justice. The innocent, non-wrongdoing, child in need of support, life, maintenance should not be punished for the sins and wrongdoings of his parents.

The very purpose Paternity Acts were enacted was to grant hapless, innocent children born out of wedlock the right to paternal support where none existed prior under the Common Law, to protect the very fundamental right to life and enjoyment thereof by all children whether their parents were married or not: to require both to support the child for its entire minority.

Further purpose was to prevent these children from becoming "public charges" needing to be supported by public taxation from Commission of the Poor or Public Welfare Departments.

Both of these "compelling" and "substantial" state interests continue in the ever mounting numbers of illegitimate births and welfare costs therefor.

The sole compelling state interest of "stale or fraudulent" claims now argued had no part in the need or reason for enactment, but comes as an after-thought borrowed from Statute of Limitation legalisms in justification of discrimination against the illegitimate child. The Statute was never created to protect putative fathers from fraudulent and stale claims.

While there is no attempt to make illegitimacy a "suspect classification" as defined in Matthews v. Lucas, 427 U.S. 495 (1976) and Trimble v. Gordon (1977) 430 U.S. 762, 52 L Ed (2d) 31, 97 S. Ct. 1459, the problem dealing with fundamental rights of children, an important and large section of individuals, this Court must be thorough in its scrutiny of the problem; to determine the most compelling state interests to be served. No mere incantation of "stale and fraudulent" claims, the watchword in Statute of Limitations justifications, should be accepted. There is no attempt to attack the concept of Statute of Limitations generally. Such statutes serve their purpose and withstand equal protection scrutiny if they treat all within the classes involved and limited thereby, equally as to time limitations that Court doors are open to such claims.

The illegitimate child's opportunity for Court enforcement is limited to 1/3 of his minority following birth and that of legitimate children for the entire 18 years of minority. The Court door is closed after 6 years serving merely to enforce the rights of wrongdoing putative fathers forgetting the needs of the innocent child for support, a superior compelling Public Interest; as well as the needs of all tax payers welfare costs another superior compelling public interest; both reasons for enactment in the first instance. The legalistic statute of limitations reasoning to prevent "stale and fraudulent" claims makes the statute self-defeating in the original purpose for which it was enacted.

II

Further it must be pointed out any and all cases accruing to minors during their minority in Michigan are tolled, suspended and extended for their entire minority MCL 600.5851, MSA 27A, 5851, EXCEPT FOR THE CAUSE OF ACTION FOR CHILD SUPPORT, only for the illegitimate child. The legitimate child has benefit of this tolling statute for his entire minority. WHY IS THE ILLEGITIMATE'S CLAIM FOR HIS MOST FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT TO LIFE AND ENJOYMENT THEREOF cut short by 2/3 rds? For no other cause of action belonging to children is exception made except in Paternity Cases of the illegitimate. There is no reason for such unequal treatment in the single instance of the most fundamental right of a child to life, dealing with a most compelling state interest to have such children supported by their fathers rather than from public treasury and taxes.

Time has come to heed the admonition of Justice Oliver W. Holmes when he said in HYDE v. U.S. 225 U.S. 347 at 391, 56 L Ed 1114 at 1135(1)

> "It is one of the misfortunes of the law that IDEAS BECOME ENCYSTED IN PHRASES and thereafter CEASE TO PROVIDE FURTHER ANALYSIS." (Emphasis supplied)

"Stale and fraudulent" claims prevention is such an "encysted phrase" that needs deletion from Paternity Statute of Limitation justification, as done in the past.

Surely Justice J. Miller's observation in Plunkard vs. State; 10A. 225 at 227 still holds true, which went as follows:

> "Clearly procreation of illegitimate children cannot be said to be a privilege and immunity of the citizens of the United States".....

nor to be protected by Statutes of Limitations in Paternity Acts. There is no true logical and just reason for treating children born in wedlock superiorily to those out of wedlock in our Courts. The doors must be open and opportunity same in duration. The rules of evidence and presumptions are not being challenged and will remain the same, but the compelling needs of the children and of the State, its taxpayers and welfare costs--the real compelling interests that caused enactment of the Paternity Act must not be destroyed or limited by legalistic concepts of Statutes of Limitations having no real just or logical basis in the field of child support.

Mills v. Habluetzel 71, L Ed(2) 770, 102 S. Ct 1549 (1982) is the only case touching directly on this specific question by this Court directly holding the one-year Statute of Limitations denied illegitimate children equal protection of law.

The majority opinion stated:

> "Moreover, this unrealistically short time limitation is NOT SUBSTANTIALLY RELATED TO THE STATE'S INTEREST IN AVOIDING PROSECUTION OF STALE OR FRAUDLENT CLAIMS." (emphasis supplied- 71 L. Ed(2) 779.)

at P 776. 71 L. Ed(2) the Court said:

> "Second ANYTIME LIMITATION placed upon that opportunity must be SUBSTANTIALLY RELATED TO THE STATES INTEREST IN AVOIDING THE LITIGATION OF STALE OR FRAUDULFNT CLAIMS". (Emphasis added.)

It is clear that avoiding stale or fraudulent claims is not a "substantial" or "compelling" state interest that justifies discrimination against the illegitimate child in his claim for paternal support. To say merely a "reasonable opportunity "to assert such claims WITHOUT BEING EQUAL TO BOTH LEGITIMATE AND ILLEGITIMATE is to analyze the problem as one of fundamental fairness or due process, RATHER THAN EQUAL PROTECTION. What is reasonable for the legitimate in duration of Court availability to assert such claims, MUST be equal in duration for the illegitimate.

The Justice O'Connor Opinion part I signed by five Judges leaving only four in the Justice Rehnquist opinion was written for fear that the four year statute of limitations in use since Mills Case was appealed, would be approved, and concludes that there was no "compelling" or "substantial" state interest in any period of limitation when she stated:

> "The risk that the child will find himself without financial support from his natural father seems as likely throughout his minority as during the first year of life. (Emphasis added 71 L Ed(2d) 782.

Further at 71 L Ed(2d) P781 she points out

> "It is also significant to the result today that a paternity suit is one of the few Texas causes of action not tolled during the minority of the plaintiff"

It is clear in the Justice O'Connor Opinion the state interest in preventing stale and fraudulent claims exists, but is undercut by the public interest or policy that genuine claims for child support are satisfied and justice done not only the minors but also to reduce the welfare rolls, both superior in importance and magnitude to the state. Part II of the Justice O'Connor Opinion negates her own reasoning set forth in Part I, agreed to and joined by Chief Justice Berger: Justices Brennan, Blackman and Powell.

This confusing Opinions of the Mills Case need clarification to do true justice and equal protection of the law to the hapless illegitimate in obtaining his fundamental right to paternal support without limitation in time equal to that given to legitimate children.

Further in Mills, Lalli v. Lalli, 439 U.S. 259 (1978) and Parham v. Hughes, 441 U.S. 347 (1979) are cited as examples justifying the "stale and/or fraudulent" claims as a compelling state need. In neither case was a challenge made to limitations statutes. In Lalli the holding is not a matter of when the action had to be started, BUT WHETHER ANY MINOR'S ACTION IS AVAILABLE AT ALL. "Dead Man's Statute", an old Common Law concept prevents the minor to bring an action against a dead person who cannot defend himself,--NOT A STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS PROBLEM AS IN THE INSTANT CASE AT BAR; against living putative fathers.

Parham did not deal with a statute of limitation problem of the minor, RATHER THE RIGHT OF A PUTATIVE FATHER NEVER ESTABLISHED AS LEGAL FATHER IN COURT TO BRING AN ACTION FOR WRONGFUL DEATH OF THE MINOR. Under the Common Law Doctrines of "lack of STATUS" and "unjust enrichment" this putative father, who never acknowledged, legitimized or found to be legal father in a Court, ought not to be allowed to profit from his wrongful denial of paternity to collect damages for the death of a child he was not legally entitled to sue for. Such Putative Father lacks status to sue and should not be unjustly enriched.

These cases hardly bolster the contention that "stale and fraudulent" claims makes a "compelling" state interest to justify the invidious discrimation against illegitimate children.

The Mills Decision is a start in the right direction, but needs further clarification in this important field of fundamental rights of minors and mounting public costs of welfare and taxation. More apodictic guidelines are forth coming and law must be more than pecksniffian hubris to achieve the just respect it deserves, in this socio-economic problem where the innocent minor has been the "whipping boy" of under-served opprobrium over the centuries for the sins of his parents in improper pre-marital liaisons.

While the law may not be able to erase the ubiquitous persiflage that pervaded illegitmacy through the ages it can grant this unfortunate class of minors a full chance to be supported by their true fathers lifting that burden from the public taxpayers at large as much as possible.

CONCLUSION

For the above reasons, this Court should note probable jurisdiction of this appeal.

COURT OF APPEALS

DIANE DANIEL,

Plaintiff-Appellant,

WALTER R. COLLIER,

Defendant-Appellee.

NO. 54983

BEFORE: Danhof, C.J., and M.F. Cavanagh and Freeman*, JJ.

M. F. CAVANAGH, J.

Plaintiff commenced a paternity action on March 5, 1980, alleging that defendant was the father of her child, who was born on December 18, 1973. Defendant responded with a motion for accelerated judgment in lieu of an answer, raising the six-year statute of limitations defense, MCL 722.714(b); MSA 25.494(b). The trial court granted defendant's motion. Plaintiff appeals as of right.

Defendant in an affidavit accompanying his motion stated that he never acknowledged the child, never contributed to the child's support, and had never been absent from the jurisdiction within the limitation period. Plaintiff did not controvert these facts, but instead claimed that the limitation period was an unconstitutional violation of the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution, US Const, Am XIV, and the Michigan Constitution, Const 1963, art 1, §2. Plaintiff asserted that the limitation period of the paternity act unreasonably limits an action for support of an illegitimate child to a six-year period when legitimate children may maintain an action for support during their entire majority. The trial court disagreed. We affirm the trial court's decision.

MCL 722.714(b); MSA 25.494(b) provides:

"Sec. 4. (a) A proceeding in accordance with this act shall be brought by the mother, the father or the department of social services as provided hereafter. Complaints shall be made in the county where the mother and child * * * or 1 of them reside. If both the mother and child reside outside this state, then the complaint shall be made in the county where the putative father resides or is found. The fact that the child was conceived or born outside of this state * * * shall not be a bar to entering a complaint against the putative father.

"Commencement of proceedings; limitation of actions

"(b) Proceedings in pursuance of this act may be instituted during the pregnancy of the mother or after the birth of the child, but shall not be brought after the lapse of more than 6 years from the birth of the child, unless paternity has been acknowledged by the father in writing in accordance with statutory provisions. If any payment is made for support of the child in the 6-year period, the proceedings may be commenced any time within 6 years from the last of any such payment. If the defendant is outside the state during the 6-year period, the time he is so absent shall not be included in the 6-year period."

The United States Supreme Court has developed a middle-tier test for the purpose of examining alleged equal protection violations based on gender and illegitimacy. This test, sometimes called "rational basis with a bite", emerged from the Supreme Court's decision in Craig v Boren, 429 US 190; 97 S Ct 451; 50 L Ed 2d 397 (1976), in the Court's discussion of an alleged equal protection violation based on gender. A challenged statute alleging discrimination based on illegitimacy must be substantially related to permissible governmental interests, Lalli v Lalli, 439 US 259; 99 S Ct 518; 58 L Ed 2d 503 (1978).

Other state courts have examined the question of statutes limiting the period in which a cause of action for support of an illegitimate child may be pursued. Jurisdictions have come out on both sides of the issue. See Cessna v Montgomery, 63 Ill 2d 71; 344 NE2d 447 (1976), upholding a two-year limitation period, Stringer and Garcia v Dudoich, 583 Pac 2d 462 (N.M. 1978), striking down a two-year limitation period, and County of Lenoir, ex rel Coodell v Johnson, 264 SE 2d 816 (N.C. 1980), striking down a three-year limitation period. The United States Supreme Court in Gomez v Perez, 409 US 535; 93 S Ct 872; 35 L Ed 2d 56 (1973), held that a state may not deny illegitimate children a cause of action against the fathers for support while permitting legitimate children to bring such actions. After reviewing prior decisions on classifications by legitimacy, the Supreme Court held:

"Under these decisions, a State may not invidiously discriminate against illegitimate children by denying them substantial benefits accorded children generally. We therefore hold that once a State posits a judicially enforceable right on behalf of children to needed support from their natural fathers there is no constitutionally sufficient justification for denying such an essential right to a child simply because its natural father has not married its mother. For a State to do so is illogical and unjust. Weber v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co, supra, at 175, 31 L Ed 2d 768. We recognize the lurking problems with respect to proof of paternity. Those problems are not to be lightly brushed aside, but neither can they be made into an impenetrable barrier that works to shield otherwise invidious discrimination. Stanley v Illinois, 405 US 645, 656-657, 31 L Ed 2d 551, 92 S Ct 1208 (1972); Carrington v Rash, 380 US 89, 13 L Ed 2d 675, 85 S Ct 775 (1965)." Gomez, supra, 538.

The Illinois Supreme Court in Cessna, supra, relied on the decision in Gomez in holding:

"No Supreme Court case had indicated, and Gomez cannot be read to require, that illegitimates be given an unrestricted right throughout their minority to bring a paternity action. The State has a legitimate interest in preventing the litigation of stale or fraudulent claims. (Jimenez v Weinberger, (1974), 417 US 628, 636, 94 S Ct 2496, 2501, 41 L Ed 2d 363, 370.) The State of Illinois Family Study Commission has concluded, even with the two-year limitation period, that paternity actions are beset with coercion, corruption and perjury. (Report and Recommendations to the 76th General Assembly, at 55 (1969).) It may well be that the longer the period between birth and suit the greater the possibility of fraud. At the very least, a defendant's problems of proof are substantially increased. In our judgment the General Assembly, in order to promote the State's legitimate interests, may establish any limitation period it deems appropriate so long as it is not so short as to be tantamount to the impenetrable barrier proscribed in Gomez."

We agree with the Cessna Court. The six-year period of limitations is not unreasonable in light of the state's legitimate interest in discouraging the bringing of stale or fraudulent claims. The statute states that the action "shall be brought by the mother, the father or the department of social services", therefore, the appellant's argument that the current statute unfairly requires the initiation of suit during a time when the child labors under a disability is without merit.

The statute sub judice reasonably limits the period of time in which the paternity of a child may be affixed on a person not married to the child's mother at the time of the child's conception and birth. The Legislature has determined that the protection of an individual's right to be free from the threat of litigation for more than a reasonable time outweighs the interests of allowing paternity actions to be brought after a six-year period from the child's birth.

Affirmed. No costs.
